

NAJS 2006 – Guidelines for Participation

www.najs.jp

The paper presentations at the annual NAJS Conference are divided into two categories: Sessions and Group Discussions. The Sessions category consists of more or less finished papers. Priority will be given to papers that are ready, or nearly ready for publication. In the Group Discussions category participants can present their research ideas, projects as well as work in progress. There are three different registration forms: one for participants in Sessions, one for participants in Group Discussions and one for participants without a paper. Please make sure that you fill in the correct form and answer all the questions.

Since it is a prerequisite for participants to read all papers presented at the conference beforehand, all papers should be sent in at the latest five weeks prior to the conference. The NAJS webmaster will then publish them as pdf files on the NAJS homepage so that they can be downloaded four weeks ahead of the conference.

Format for Sessions

No time will be given for the presenter to summarize his or her paper. The presenter is, however, allowed a maximum of five minutes to state what type of publication or audience he/she is aiming at and state special requests about the desired feedback. Thereafter two discussants will be given five minutes each to bring up the points most worthy of discussion in the paper. The presenter is then given five minutes to respond before the floor is opened for everyone to comment. The chair of the session should see to it that focus is on major issues rather than details and that the time limit is kept.

Format for Group Discussions

Group discussions are rather flexible. The presenter should briefly summarize the ideas in his or her paper and state special requests about the desired feedback. There are no discussants. The chair has the role of actively leading the discussions. In Group Discussions there is time to elaborate more extensively on the ideas presented than in Sessions.

Length of the paper

It is advisable that papers do not exceed 8000 words (about twenty pages).
